JIT - Just In Time is different from the Kanban System?Toyota Production System? - JIT - Just In Time is different from the Kanban System?Toyota Production System? by econoshift.com 8,383 views 6 years ago 6 minutes - Some people misunderstand and think that 'Just, In Time,' and the Kanban, System are the same things. This video explains what ...

Just In Time is the philosophy of producing or procuring \"the right items at the right time in the right amounts,\" then eliminating waste thoroughly.

That also helps to eliminate \"Waste, Overburden, Unevenness\" and improve production efficiency. This concept works well not only for manufacturing operations but is also greatly effective for service operations.

The Kanban System = A unique production system that Toyota has developed in order to achieve \"Just In Time\".

Just In Time is the goal and the Kanban System is the tool.

Today, the Just In Time concept has pervaded many companies and industries all over the world.

If you don't have any material inventory at all, you have to purchase materials after taking orders.

\"Mass Production\" = - Purchases large amounts of raw materials

Toyota Motor Corporation's founder Kiichiro Toyoda went to the United States and visited Ford's plants.

The major issue of the Mass Production is that it requires a lot of raw material inventory and finished goods inventory.

The bigger the inventory you had, the more likely problems in your process would be hidden.

When product trends quickly change significantly, excessive inventory will immediately turn into dead inventory.

In such an era, the Just In Time philosophy is what's needed.

All your process steps and all your employees have to achieve \"The right items at the right time in the right amounts.\"
